STANDARDISATION IN AGEING SOCIETIES:
NATIONAL AND INTERNATIONAL STANDARDS
DEVELOPMENT

Are you interested in improving ageing societies? Then this workshop is for you! Your participation is crucial to make standardisation in ageing societies a success, whether you are a consumer, researcher, policy-makers, carer, CEO, working in any industry or simply interested to learn more.

Standards can help boost ageing societies, and drive innovation to improve the quality of life of older people and ageing societies not only in Australia but globally. Ageing societies spans across all industries, areas and people. During this workshop you will learn what Standards Australia and the International Organisation for Standardisation (ISO) do to improve ageing societies and how they can help you.

This workshop will give you hands-on experience and insights into the world of standards, the progress being made by the ISO Technical Committee (TC) 314 on Ageing Societies and the crucial role they play in ageing societies. You will gain knowledge about the standards development process and learn how you can contribute actively to the development of standards nationally and internationally. Exciting European and Asian standardisation processes related to ageing will also be presented. This workshop will explore the Royal Commission into Aged Care Quality and Safety findings and focus on the importance of the development of aging societies standards.

After this workshop you will:

- ◆ Understand who Standards Australia are and how they can help you improve ageing societies
- ◆ Understand who the International Organization for Standardisation (ISO) and the Technical Committee (TC) 314 Aging Societies are and how they can help you improve ageing societies
- ◆ Understand how standards are developed in Australia and internationally and how you can get involved
- ◆ Have discussed the potential for developing standards to help support initial findings from the Royal Commission into Aged Care Quality and Safety.
